DAR ES SALAAM, Aug. 17, (R). — Rhodesian troops killed up to 1,000 people in their raid on a refugee camp inside Mozambique last week, the official Mozambican news agency said today.

"At least 670 were slaughtered in the attack," the agency reported. "Medical staff on the scene believe the total death toll is at least 800 and may well reach 1,000."

Rhodesia has said its troops killed more than 300 black nationalists in the raid.

West Bank villagers protest fencing-in of Arab land

TEL AVIV, Aug. 17, (R). — Residents of the village of Abu Dis, on the Israeli-occupied West Bank have protested to foreign consulates and the International Red Cross against the fencing-in of 500 acres (200 hectares) of Arab land by Israeli authorities.

The villagers told Reuters yesterday they planned to build a model housing complex on the hilltop site, which is too barren to be cultivated.

Israeli sources claimed the site was enclosed "in preparation for the construction of apartments for Arabs from Abu Dis and nearby Jerusalem."

But the villagers said they had never heard of the government's plans and want to build their own houses.

The site was a Jordanian Arab Legion camp until captured by Israel in the 1967 war.

Meanwhile, shops in the West Bank remained closed as the strike against the Israeli value-added tax was well into its third week.

Police detained 10 religious seminary students today when they held a prayer meeting in a one-time Jewish hospital in the town of Hebron.

They were released after being charged with trespass, like 23 students who tried to pray in the same abandoned building yesterday.

Rabbi Moshe Franco, 80, of Jerusalem, claims ownership of the two-storey building in the name of the Jewish community which lived in Hebron before the 1948 war.

Rabbi Franco has said he has given the building to the Jewish residents of the Kiryat Arba suburb of Hebron, to be used as a synagogue or religious seminary.

The military governor has warned Jewish settlers he will continue to order police to remove trespassers.

President Ford tipped Chamoun delivers ultimatum to Palestinian

PREPARING FOR VICTORY — American President Ford waves as he departs from the Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City Monday night, where he attended a reception for House minority leader John Rhodes, prior to the Republican Convention. (AP wirephoto).

KANSAS CITY, Missouri, Aug. 17, (R). — President Ford has now collected enough votes to win the Republican Party's presidential nomination, the three major U.S. television networks reported today. Each network, announcing the results of polls taken among delegates, said the president had passed the total of 1,130 votes needed to win the party's nomination at its convention here tomorrow night. Mr. Reagan still hopes however that if he can force Mr. Ford into revealing his choice of running mate before the party nominates its presidential candidate tomorrow night he can draw off some of the president's support.

The choice of a southern conservative candidate, such as former Texas Governor John Connally, could upset some northern party liberals — and a reverse situation could also harm Mr. Ford if announced in advance.

Mr. Reagan has already revealed his vice-presidential choice — Senator Richard Schweiker, a liberal from Pennsylvania.

The former California governor also planned to ask the convention to amend its stated foreign policy, making it critical of certain aspects of Mr. Ford's policy towards the Soviet Union.

Indirectly attacking the president for refusing to meet Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the amendment says "we recognise and commend the great beacon of human courage and morality" of the exiled Soviet writer.

When Mr. Reagan called on the Illinois delegation he was confronted by Mrs. Marie Goodlow, who alleged yesterday that a man identifying himself as a Reagan supporter had offered her 2,500 dollars to switch her support from Mr. Ford to Mr. Reagan.

Mr. Reagan had said it was not true that Mrs. Goodlow and another Illinois delegate had been offered bribes to switch to him. "I think it stinks," he said.

A nervous Mrs. Goodlow, who says she did not accept any money, stood up at today's meeting and told Mr. Reagan: "The things I said are true. I am not lying."

Mr. Reagan replied: "I don't know who is trying to do what with these stories. I favour an investigation."

Another member of the Illinois delegation, who did not wish to be named, later told reporters that Mrs. Goodlow may have been talking about him. He said he had tried to convince her to switch her support but at no time had he mentioned money.

The authorities meanwhile held a meeting with the Soweto Students' Representative Council (SSRC) which organised demonstrations last week.

An SSRC official urged students to go back to schools and to sit for the examinations since the authorities refused to postpone them. Police used teargas today to disperse about 500 student demonstrators from a rugby field at Kwaazale secondary school, near Port Elizabeth.

In another part of the city, police broke up a demonstration by coloured students of mixed race, held in sympathy "with families who lost their loved ones in this country's cruel shooting."

More than 200 people have died during clashes between police and demonstrators that began in Soweto in mid-June.

BEIRUT, Aug. 17, (AFP). — Camille Chamoun, leader of the National Liberal Party, today warned the Palestinians that if they did not evacuate the Lebanese mountain some 30 km (18 miles) northeast of Beirut, "we shall take them by force." Mr. Chamoun issued his ultimatum a meeting with President Suleiman Franjeh. Answering reporter's question, he reiterated that the rightwing "Lebanese Front" intended to "liberate the whole of Lebanon from the Palestinian occupation."

He also expressed the belief that Mr. Franjeh, whose term runs out next Sept. 23, would stay in office until that date.

In the mountain sector itself, shooting continued today, but reports from the front, which stretches about 20 km (12 miles) from the southeast to the northeast of Beirut, remained fragmentary and contradictory.

Rightist forces in the sector are trying to recapture from the leftists and Palestinians a number of villages and towns governing access to the Christian city of Zahle in the central Lebanese plain of Bekaa.

Today the rightists announced that armoured forces were heading toward one of the sector's towns B'hamdun, about 20 km (12 miles) from Beirut.

The leftwing and Palestinian forces' spokesmen however dismissed the announcement as "psychological warfare" aimed at "sowing doubts in the ranks of the (leftwing) Lebanese National Movement and creating the belief that the combatants of the Lebanese mountain are caught between a crossfire."

The "Voice of Palestine" however reported "suspicious movements" at Sofar, near Tyre.

The rightwing "Voice of Lebanon" radio reported heavy and rocket shelling in the Beirut district of Achrafieh, sing casualties and material damage.

Western Beirut, under left control, was also shelled with heavy-calibre shells on the Hamra district, the said.

It also reported fighting in Shiah-Ain Remmaneh sector, the southeastern suburbs of Beirut "where an infiltration of was thrown back."

The leftwing radio — mean reported that the rightist had led leftwing and Palestinian fighters in the Jezzin region in Lebanon.

At the same time, leftwing forces here said that Libya might launch a "joint initiative" to convince all aid apply the recent Syrian-Palestine agreement.

Unified Vietnam demands U.S. aid for post-war reconstruction

ADDRESSING CONFERENCE — President Tito of Yugoslavia addresses the fifth Non-Aligned Summit Conference in Colombo today. (AP wirephoto).

COLOMBO, Aug. 17, (R). — Vietnam offered today to normalise relations with the United States, but insisted America helps post-war reconstruction.

Mr. Pham Van Dong, Vietnam's prime minister, made the offer in a speech to the Fifth Non-Aligned Summit Conference where the U.S. and other Western powers were much criticised.

Mr. Pham, lean and white-haired, is representing unified Vietnam at its first major international gathering. The U.S. had to honour a commitment under the Paris Vietnam peace agreement to help rebuild his country, he said.

"For the United States, with whom we are prepared, however, to be a zone of peace."

Philippines quake, tidal waves kill 1,800

LONDON, Aug. 17, (R). — A series of mighty spasms from below the crust of the earth today left hundreds of people dead and put thousands under sentence of catastrophe yet to come.

A devastating earthquake and tidal wave killed almost 1,800 people in the southern Philippines.

It was the worst earth tremor recorded in modern times in the Philippines, which lies in an active earthquake belt. It eclipsed comparable shocks in 1862, when 300 people died, and 1968, when 321 lost their lives.

A major earthquake hit China for the second time in three weeks. Chinese authorities said strong shocks were felt in Chentu, a city of three million people, but did not give any details of casualties or damage.

Across the world, in the French Caribbean island of Guadeloupe, 70,000 people evacuated from their homes awaited the predicted nuclear-force eruption of a rumbling volcano.

The Philippines earthquake hit the sleeping scattered islands on the shores of the Celebes Sea in the small hours of Tuesday (just after 1600 GMT Monday).

It was the resulting 15 foot (five metre) high tidal wave sweeping over the islands of Mindanao, Sulu, Basilan and Tawi which apparently claimed most lives.

President Ferdinand Marcos tonight declared a state of emergency as the known death toll rose to 1,800 and reports of more casualties came in by the hour.

Dozens of buildings were demolished by the quake and 11 lesser aftershocks. Thousands of people were homeless.

China tonight reported that its latest quake rocked a mountainous region near the borders of Szechwan and Kansu provinces.

The newly-stricken area is about 1,000 miles (1,600 km) southwest of the centre of the quake that shattered Tangshan city and killed thousands three weeks ago. It was more than 2,000 miles (3,200 km) northwest of the Philippines.

Egypt arrests 4 alleged Libyan saboteurs

CAIRO, Aug. 17, (R) — Security police have arrested four alleged Libyan agents suspected of planting explosives in a train and at a bus station last June, according to the official Egyptian Middle East News Agency (MENA) today.

The agency said they were accused of planting two bombs in an Alexandria-to-Cairo train. The charges were discovered & defused. A charge they were alleged to have planted at a bus station on the Nile delta exploded.

The agency said the four men confessed they had been recruited by Libyan intelligence and trained at a camp in Tobruk, near the Egyptian border.

Quoting security officials, MENA said the four infiltrated over the border on June 29, planted the explosives and returned to Libya. Later, they came back to Egypt the same way, the agency said.

On Saturday, eight people were killed and more than 50 injured when an explosive charge ripped through a third class carriage of a passenger train in Alexandria.

Earlier, 14 people were hurt when an explosion damaged the fifth floor of a government office block in Cairo.

Egyptian police blamed Libyan intelligence for both incidents. Libya has denied the accusations.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

erring to H.M. King Hussein relayed through the U.S. artificial satellite, Al-Husseini, who spoke the Royal Scientific Society, seized the occasion to taunt Jordan, its hopes and aspirations, and its modest achievement in the field of development. It is its ambitious aims for the future, as a small country trying to grow up with its own efforts in a world dominated by peace and justice. It commends Jordan for being the first Arab country to use raw benefit from the modern technology by constructing a satellite station "which draws closer to the world, and enables to utilise modern technology or oil prospecting and exploration of other mineral and natural resources."

Dustour and Al Shaab took Colombo non-aligned summit subject for comment. Al-Husseini gave prominence to the "gts" spelled out by the conference chairman and Sri Lanka's Mrs. Bandaranaike in her address, for solving Third world problems.

The paper thinks the most salient in Mrs. Bandaranaike's address was her call for the establishment of a world commercial bank for the Third World, the declaration of the Indian Ocean as a zone of peace, entailing the withdrawal of the great powers' fleets from the region and the recognition of the Palestine people's rights.

She also demanded that the concept of international detente and security must take into consideration the interests of the rich and the poor, of the strong and the weak. "This call implies the participation of all countries of the world in moulding the economic and political structure of the world. It also implies that the two superpowers should not be allowed to design the world order alone, but that the whole world community should take part in this process, thus reinforcing the position of the United Nations, Al Dustour states.

On the same subject, Al Shaab thinks the regularisation of the economic dealings between the developing countries on one side, and the developed countries on the other is the first and most important responsibility facing the non-aligned conference.

The paper notes that the wide economic gap between the two sides still persists due to the continuous rise in the standard of living and the swirling prices of imported commodities and equip-

AOAD opens regional bureau

AMMAN. — The Arab Organisation for Agricultural Development (AOAD) Tuesday opened here a regional bureau, from which it is to conduct research work and studies to develop natural and human resources for agriculture in both Jordan and Syria, in addition to developing agricultural investment means and ensure the two countries' self-sufficiency in agricultural products.

The opening ceremony was attended by the Acting Minister of Agriculture Marwan Hmud, the Mayor of Amman Mohammad Toqan, the Undersecretary of the Ministry of Agriculture Said Ghazzawi and other officials.

The head of the regional bureau, Dr. Fahd Al Ezeb a Jordanian, spoke of the Organisation's aims and achievements in the Arab countries and in particular Jordan. He said that it had supervised over the Integrated Development of Dryland Farming project in the Amman district and the Irbid Integrated Agricultural project.

The bureau he added, will soon start to collect information and statistical data on the various agricultural projects included in the five-year development plan for use by the Organisation in its research work in the other Arab countries.

The main aim of the bureau is to increase Arab agricultural production to avoid shortage in foodstuff which looms over the world. If the present rate of agricultural production he said remains the same, then, the annual deficit of the Arab countries in 1985 will reach 11 million tonnes of wheat, 2.7 million tonnes of sugar, and 617,000 tonnes of meat. Arab countries will be obliged to disburse in that case between $51 and 74 million to purchase agricultural products.

This indicates the importance of real attempts to be made to set up a new world economic order, for the purpose of diminishing the wide disparities in per capita income in the developing and the developed countries.

Al Shaab suggests that a better world future depends on two essential mainstays complementary to each other: dissemination of economic welfare, and the establishment of a just and permanent peace. Hence the important role which the Arab bloc can play within the non-aligned association to produce these two mainstays, in view of the vast Arab human capabilities and potentialities...

21 nations support North Korea at U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, New York, Aug. 17 (AFP). — Twenty-one nations supporting North Korea called here yesterday for the "immediate withdrawal of new types of weapons and military equipment, including nuclear weapons introduced into South Korea," to help bring about the peaceful reunification of Korea.

Their draft resolution, which they asked the General Assembly to consider at its next session opening on Sept. 21, raised the question of the introduction of nuclear weapons into South Korea for the first time.

The resolution also called for the "immediate cessation of all acts of foreign military involvement and aggression against Korea," and the dissolution of the United Nations command there.

All foreign troops stationed in South Korea under the U.N. flag should be withdrawn, and the armistice agreement should be replaced by a peace agreement, it said.

The resolution appealed to U.N. members to check all acts which interfered in the internal affairs of Korea and which fabricated "two Koreas" to hinder reunification, and expressed the hope that reunification would be achieved "by the Korean people themselves without the interference of any outside forces."

No request or draft resolution reflecting the South Korean point of view has yet been presented for the upcoming 31st session of the General Assembly.

At last year's session, both the pro-South Korean and pro-North Korean resolutions were adopted by the General Assembly, the first by 59 votes against 51, with 29 abstentions, the second by 54 votes against 43, with 42 abstentions.

Among the signatories of the new pro-North Korea draft are Algeria, Burundi, China, Congo, Guinea, Italy, the Laos Peoples Democratic Republic, Madagascar, Mali, Togo, and the members of the Soviet bloc.

Sources close to the observer's mission of the Republic of Korea (South Korea) indicated that the other side's request would be studied carefully before a pro-South resolution was introduced.

Yesterday's draft resolution was entitled, "Removal of the danger of war and maintenance and consolidation of peace in Korea, and acceleration of the independence and peaceful reunification of Korea."

W. Germans arrest 2 men attempting to sell NATO plans to communists

KARLSRUHE, West Germany — Aug. 17, (R). — West Germany's Federal Prosecutor yesterday announced the arrest of two men on suspicion of trying to sell plans of NATO's new multi-role combat aircraft, the Tornado, to the communists.

A statement from the prosecutor's office named them as Mr. Valerian Kuzniak, a 32-year-old Belgian citizen, and Herr Manfred Kneufelmann a West German, 36.

The statement said Mr. Kuzniak, arrested on July 29, had admitted that the plans had been intended for delivery to an "eastern secret service."

The statement confirmed earlier reports on the arrest by the conservative newspaper Die Welt.

The Belgian was described yesterday as an international arms dealer by Die Welt, which said he had asked 20 million marks (about £4,500,000) for the plans. Die Welt said he was arrested with a suitcase full of microfilms, which he had offered to the Soviet secret service, the KGB. Interrogation of Mr. Kuzniak led to the arrest of Herr Kneufelmann, the prosecutor's statement said.

He was arrested on August 6. He had asked 7,500,000 marks (about £1,700,000) for the plans, the statement said.

According to Die Welt he had offered them to the Czechoslovak arms firm of Omnipol.

The plans for the West German-Anglo-Italian plane were stolen from the computer centre of its West German producer, Messerschmitt-Boelkow-Blohm, based near Munich.

More than 800 of the Tornado planes are to be built.

The prosecutor's statement said both men were being held on suspicion of breaking laws on secret service agent activities.

It said it regretted Die Welt had published a report on the arrests because it could affect further investigations.

Sheikh Zaid will definitely step down from office at year's end

ABU DHABI, Aug. 17 (R) — Sheikh Zaid Bin Sultan, president of the United Arab Emirates (UAE), is serious about his decision not to accept another term of office after December, according to one of the country's most influential diplomats.

Mr. Mahdi Al Tajir, UAE ambassador to London, said in an interview published here yesterday that Sheikh Zaid's decision was not a political manoeuvre and it would have far-reaching consequences both for the oil-rich Gulf and Arab politics. Sheikh Zaid, ruler of Abu Dhabi, the richest of the seven emirates forming the federation, has been the driving force behind the UAE since it was founded five years ago.

He disclosed his decision to step down from the presidency at the end of his current term earlier this month, saying that he was disappointed with the attitude of his fellow rulers in tackling federal problems.

In open letter Rhodesia Catholic Bishop attacks Smith's racist politics

SALISBURY, Aug. 17, (AFP). — Rhodesia's controversial Catholic churchman, Bishop Donald Lamont, has mounted his most bitter attack on the government of Ian Smith in an open letter to the government published here Sunday.

Concern for world peace and Rhodesia's well-being and all its peoples had prompted the "unusual step" of writing the open letter, the Bishop said.

In the letter Bishop Lamont calls on the government to change its present course "without delay" to prevent an increase in racial hatred, urban guerrilla activity, fearful loss of life, and the whole sub-continent of Africa being engulfed in "a cruel war".

"As a Catholic Bishop I cannot be silent while civil discontent, racial tensions, and violence, are so much in evidence and daily on the increase," he said.

"There is a serious danger of bloody confrontation between races within Rhodesia and the political confrontation of the countries and of the escalation of the conflict throughout the whole of the sub-continent," he said.

"Conscience compels me to state that your administration is clearly racist and its policies and by its stubborn refusal to change is largely responsible for the injustices which provoked the present disorder," he said.

The letter asserts that the sent government rules by "the sword and the fist" and "not with the consent of the governed."

"To summarise in its form your abuse of power do no better than to quote words of Pope Paul the Sixth, addressing the United Nations on the subject of racial discrimination," the Bishop said.

"The Pope said: 'Within unity which belongs to all should be equal before the law, cultural, and social, benefit from a fair share of the nation's riches'."

"In every single detail of your administration your discrimination is evident," the Bishop said.

It was "understandable" that Rhodesian blacks had guerrillas and it was also understandable that this force, he said, was in his hands.

"They (the guerrillas) themselves compelled in combat to fight for the elimination of the discrimination which degraded their people and their second-class in the 'is their birth'," he said.

"While I say this, I deplore and denounce with all the power I have at my command acts of violence which have been perpetrated by these any other individuals or groups," the Bishop said.

"At the same time I repeat—no matter what the sentences for myself—that institutional violence sanctions your administration and in itself the root cause of most physical violence which Rhodesia has experienced during the 10 years," he said.

Rhodesian police and had been given "excessive powers" as well as being given indemnity against abuse of powers, he said.

"Approval has been given the bombing and destruction of villages, even though it would contain innocent people," the Bishop said.

"Obstacles of property," he said.

"The media of communication have been placed almost under the control of one party, your own, and are used constantly to suppress the truth," the Bishop said.

"It is up to you to give the fate of Rhodesia and its people is in your hands," the Bishop concluded.

Bishop Lamont lives in the town border city of Umtata, has long been an outspoken critic of the present government.

Laos soldiers kill monk in cruel circumstances

BANGKOK, Aug. 17, (AFP). — A Thai Buddhist monk was killed by Pathet Lao soldiers in July while pleading for the lives of two Thai fishermen, reported AFP's correspondent at Nong Khai, quoting authorised provincial sources.

The Venerable Phra Mun was the religious chief of Ban Nakhe, in Ban Pheng, a district of the border province of Nakhon Phanom.

At the request of the local population, he crossed the Mekong River on July 17 to intercede with the Pathet Lao authorities of Ban Bung Kwang for the release of two Thai fishermen from Ban Nakhe, arrested a month earlier.

As soon as he came ashore on the Laotian side, the monk, who was accompanied by a layman, was immediately arrested by Pathet Lao soldiers who tied him up before dragging him through the district with a military vehicle until he died.

The monk's corpse was later handed to his companion to be sent back to Ban Nakhe whose inhabitants have asked the government to protest to the Laotian central authorities.

According to the same sources, on July 29 a group of inhabitants of Nakhon Phanom province sent a letter to this effect to Thai Minister of Foreign Affairs Pichai Ratakul who visited Vientiane from July 31 to August 3.

It does not seem that the issue was brought up during talks he had with the Lao leaders, having been occupied with important economic problems caused by the closing of the Thai-Lao border.

The joint communiqué issued at the end of that visit hinted however that all Thai nationals detained by Laos will be released, but no figure or date has yet been set.

Sewer-rat-gang hits again?

PARIS, Aug. 17 (AFP). — Thieves tunneled their way into a central Paris bank from the city's sewers last weekend and rifled nearly 200 private safe deposit boxes in what appeared to be a re-run of the largest bank robbery in history in Nice last month.

The bank was a small branch of the Societe Generale, also the victim of the Nice break-in in which robbers stole an estimated 50 million francs ($10 million) and escaped through the sewers in inflatable canoes.

It was not yet known how much had been stolen from the bank, situated on the Ile St-Louis — one of the two islands in the river Seine — nor when the thieves broke in since they chose a bank holiday weekend.

The bank said the security system appeared to be in working order but there had been a "human error," although it gave no further details.

The burglary was discovered this morning when the employees returned from their long weekend.

The gang dug their way from the sewers through a reinforced concrete wall into the vault, and even took the trouble to drill ventilation shafts into their tunnel.

Britain's welfare state can be a scroungers' paradise and a system quite easy to cheat

JERDON, Aug. 17, (R). — Even in Britain, some £200 million is paid out to Britain's poor, sick, unemployed, under a welfare system sometimes called the world's most advanced countries.

It was argued that by providing for those who genuinely could not support themselves, others would be encouraged to claim who were merely too lazy to do so. On balance, however, it was decided that it was better to ensure that nobody actually starved than that a few labourers got more than they were entitled to.

Ever since, there have been arguments about how much the government should give away to cushion the poor without actually encouraging people not to work. Britain in the seventies has been accused by some foreign observers of making its welfare state so attractive that the country's economy suffered.

Social security payments totalled almost £10,000 million in 1976. Social security payments totalled almost £10,000 million in 1976. Social security payments totalled almost £10,000 million in 1976.

Mr. Iain Sproat, another conservative member, is leading a campaign for a clampdown on social security swindlers. He amassed a substantial dossier which proves without doubt that the problem is now a national scandal.

He declares that at least 20 per cent of social security payouts are fraudulent and that the number is increasing. He claims knowledge of several cases of people allegedly drawing full unemployment benefit while working or claiming other benefits by lying about their marital status, accommodation, or number of children, or else by simply refusing jobs offered because they preferred to receive unemployment pay.

It was alleged last year that a group of Irish Republican Army guerrillas may have netted £10 million of British taxpayers' money in an elaborate social security swindle.

The problem is not new. It dates from the Poor Law Amendment Act of 1834 which aroused fierce debates in the parliament of its day, but which made Britain one of the world's most socially-advanced countries.

French prehistoric animal cemetery discovered

PERIGUEUX, France, Aug. 17. — Two French potholers have found a huge prehistoric animal cemetery near here, it was announced last Friday.

Their discovery of a layer of animal bones in a cemetery 800 metres long by 40 metres wide and 25 metres high, was made on Wednesday. Experts consider the discovery as one of the most important prehistoric finds of recent years.

The bones were in a bed of calcite which has kept them well preserved.

The two potholers also discovered an underground stream which they were able to follow for about 400 metres and reported a strong current of air which suggests the existence of another huge room.

Meanwhile three other potholers have found at nearby Eyzyes several utensils and a remarkably well preserved wall painting of a mammoth.

Shiny ornaments that may be used for jewellery pendants, or package decorations are offered by an American manufacturer for a price less than silver and pewter, which they resemble. The ornaments are made of an alloy called ARMETALE. They are cast by a sand-molding process, resulting in slight undulations that impart soft reflections.

U.N. expert: desert is encroaching on Africa

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 17, (R) — Desert sands are invading more and more African countries and threatening the loss of land badly needed for producing crops, a United Nations executive reported Saturday.

Dr. M.K. Tolbert, executive director of the U.N. Environment Programme (UNEP), said that as many as 30 African countries are now suffering from "desertification."

Before leaving for Kenya after a two-day visit to Ethiopia, he said much needed arable land would disappear under the sands unless the problem was faced boldly. He indicated that the destruction of forests was partly to blame.

Dr. Tolbert said the UNEP Regional Office for Africa, which has been temporarily based in Nairobi, Kenya, would be stationed permanently in Addis Ababa. The Ethiopian capital is already the headquarters of the U.N.'s Economic Commission for Africa and the Organisation of African Unity.

Asia's rice crop staple diet for half of humanity

Drying the threshed rice.

Rice threshed by hand.

A water buffalo helps prepare the land for cultivation.

Seedlings being transplanted.

(CSM). — The farmer bends to his task. Into the ground goes a slender green seedling. Once more there will be food for Asia to eat.

The slender seedling is rice, and rice means life for Asia's population, which makes up more than half of humanity.

Rice is the staple of their diet; more than 50 per cent of their food energy comes from it. The International Rice Research Institute estimates that 32.8 million acres of land in Asia are devoted to the growing of rice.

And yet perhaps no other food crop in the world rests on so fragile a base. Insects, weeds, and extremes of weather can whittle down its yields.

And even if these do not confound the farmer's efforts, a man-made problem—war—often does. For war chases farmers off their lands, and the crops then go unplanted or untended.

Asia has been beset by land wars for all but one of the last 36 years. It is no mere coincidence that the new regimes in Cambodia and Vietnam, as one of their first acts have directed the peasants who have crowded into the cities to go back to the land and get to work once again.

Planting, cultivating, and reaping Asia's rice crop are hard and humble work. Most Asian farms are too small for the use of modern machinery, so the crops are generally grown by hand labour.

Animals such as the water buffalo are used to help prepare the land for cultivation.

The seed is sown thickly over a small area, so that the danger of weeds is reduced to a minimum. But when the seedlings are 25 to 50 days old, they are transplanted individually to a much larger area, or paddy, which has been flooded to a depth of about four inches.

Assuming that water conditions and sunshine have been adequate—and the paddies carefully weeded—the rice grows to maturity. Harvest is usually by means of a sickle. The rice is then threshed by hand.

The threshed rice is dried in the sun, in some cases on an unused road.

It is not unusual for more than 400 man-hours of labour to go into producing a rice crop from a single acre of Asian soil.

Most of Asia's rice is consumed within only a few miles of where it was grown.

At Rabat conference

Development ministers discuss autonomous Arab technology

RABAT, Aug. 17, (R) — The Arab World must develop its own science and technology because imported techniques can lead to political dependence, said Mr. Amadou Mahtar Mbow, Director General of the U.N. Organisation for Education, Science and Culture (UNESCO) here yesterday.

At the opening of the conference of ministers of Arab states responsible for the application of science and technology to development (Castarab), M. Mbow stressed that there must be a scientific renaissance in the Arab World.

He noted that the Arabs had led the world in experimental science in centuries past, particularly in chemistry, botany, medicine, pharmacy, astronomy and geography, and this "guarantees the possibility of a scientific renewal."

"Scientific and technical knowledge should not be imported like manufactured goods," M. Mbow said, and if 90 per cent of research was concentrated in developed countries the Arab World must have its own autonomous scientific activity adapted to the special conditions in the area.

He noted that between one and two dollars per capita was spent in the Arab World on research and development when it was between 50 & 100 in most industrialised countries.

He also pointed out the imbalance in education. Between 1965 and 1973 the number of Arab university students rose from 300,000 to over 600,000 but only 34 per cent studied the sciences.

The opening of the ten-day conference was attended by delegates from 16 Arab states with Mauritania as an observer. The Yemen Republic, Somalia and Algeria did not attend the opening. A dozen U.N. agencies and nine states from outside the Arab World are also attending as observers.

The conference, which was opened by the late King Hassan II, will close on August 19.

AMMAN. — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is due to arrive here on a two-day semi-official visit on August 19, official sources said Tuesday.

The Canadian prime minister will hold talks with His Majesty King Hussein and Prime Minister Mudar Badran on bilateral relations and the latest developments of the Middle East crisis.

Diplomatic relations at ambassadorial level have been established between Jordan and Canada two years ago and relations between the two countries have greatly improved during that period, in particular in the tourist field.

Canada has recently made known its willingness to finance a $50 million tourist project to be set up on the coast of Aqaba.

The Canadian government had also commissioned at an earlier date an expedition for oil exploration in Jordan.

POLISARIO claims sabotage of key Sahara mines

ALGIERS, Aug. 17 (AFP) — Nationalist guerrillas today claimed to have stopped all production at the Bu Craa phosphate mines in Western (formerly Spanish) Sahara, source of the territory's only wealth, by sabotaging power lines and the conveyor belt from the mines to the sea.

In a statement published here, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Saguia el Hamra and Rio de Oro (POLISARIO) said the conveyor system was put out of operation over a four kilometre stretch last Thursday.

Earlier, all production at Bu Craa was halted when the guerrillas destroyed electric power lines, the statement said.

"The wealth lying under our land belongs to our people who are fighting for their independence and it will be exploited only by them," the Algerian-backed front said.

POLISARIO opposes the annexation of Western Sahara by Mauritania and Morocco under their agreement with Spain.

The two countries partitioned the territory at the end of February.

Pakistan - France nuclear deal will not be delayed

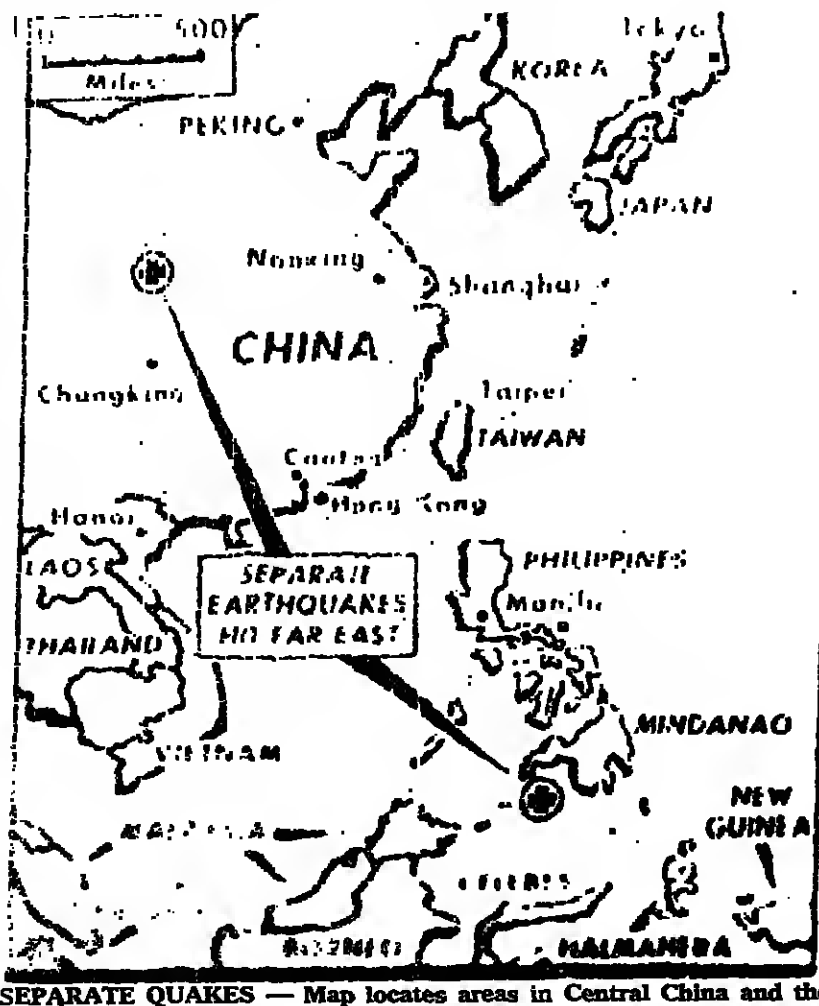

ISLAMABAD, Aug. 17, (AFP) — Minister of State for Defence and Foreign Affairs Aziz Ahmad today ruled out the possibility of any delay in Pakistan's purchase of a nuclear reprocessing plant from France.

Asked at a press conference here whether the hostile United States attitude toward the proposed purchase was likely to affect Pakistan's plans in this connection, Mr. Ahmad replied that he did not expect any delay in the implementation of the purchase agreement.

The project, at a predicted cost to Pakistan of some $150 million, was the main topic at a meeting here earlier this month between Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto and U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Mr. Aziz rejected a reporter's suggestion that U.S. objections to the deal were likely to harm what Mr. Aziz had earlier described as Pakistan's "very good" relations with the U.S.

"We do not expect that," he said.

Sudan intensifies Eritrean mediation efforts

KHARTOUM, Aug. 17, (R) — Sudan is conducting "intensified contacts" with the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF) in its efforts to mediate between them and the Ethiopian government, the Sudan News Agency said today.

The Sudan, which borders Ethiopia, has been acting behind the scenes to try to end the fighting between Ethiopian government troops and the Eritrean Liberation Front - People's Liberation Forces (ELF-PLF).

In February President Jaafar el Nimeiry of Sudan proposed a peace conference to be preceded by a ceasefire and amnesty by the government for all who had taken part in the fighting.

Ethiopia accepted this in principle and in May, head of state Terer Bante offered wide-ranging pardons and clemency to what he described as "Eritrean progressives."

The agreement was also discussed with Syrian leaders by a Phalangist delegation that returned here today from Damascus.

The delegation leader, Karim Bagraduny, had a meeting on his return with Mr. Franjeh. Phalangist sources said that Syria's attitude would remain unchanged.

Gen. Assad, who is in Colombo for the Non-Aligned Summit, today expressed the hope that both sides in Lebanon would "collaborate" to get out of the crisis and foil the great conspiracy that has been hatched against Lebanon, the Palestinian cause, and the Arab nation.

The leftwing radio, monitored in Nicosia, reported that President-elect Elias Sarkis might have a meeting soon with Gen. Assad.

The radio, quoting sources close to Mr. Sarkis, said the meeting's aim would be to enable Mr. Sarkis to reach an agreement with Gen. Assad on the Syrian presence in Lebanon.

Unified Vietnam demands U.S. aid

Tonight, some 60 delegation leaders had yet to speak and the strain of the long hours was reflected by many empty seats in the hall when Mr. Pham spoke late this afternoon.

The Vietnamese premier said Hanoi was prepared for many-sided relations of friendship and cooperation with its neighbours in South East Asia.

Mr. Pham specifically attacked the U.S. over its role in Korea, the Middle East and in Latin America. He joined Indian Ocean states in demanding total U.S. withdrawal from that region.

President Makarios said Turkey's invasion of Cyprus had "genocidal features" and its intent was dismemberment and colonisation of two-fifths of the island.

To find a parallel with Turkey's actions in Cyprus, "one would have to look to the Nazi atrocities or the Armenian massacres in Turkey or go back to the times of Attila," Archbishop Makarios said.

Tolerance of Turkey's activities in Cyprus had emboldened the Turks.

Tanaka released on bail

TOKYO, Aug. 17, (AFP) — Former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka was released from the Tokyo Detention House this afternoon on bail of $666,001 after 21 days' confinement.

Mr. Tanaka was arrested July 27 for alleged violation of the foreign currency and trade control law in connection with the Lockheed payoff scandal and was indicted Tuesday on a charge of taking $1,666,000 as a bribe from Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, through the major trading house of Marubeni, one-time agent for Lockheed.

China announces second quake was major but damage slight

PEKING, Aug. 17, (R) — A major earthquake which hit western China last night registered strong shocks in a provincial capital with a population of more than three million, the New China News Agency said today.

In its first official account of the earthquake — 24 hours after it was reported by foreign seismologists — the agency said the epicentre was in the Sungpan-Pingwu area, near the borders of Szechwan and Kansu provinces.

It said the quake registered 7.2 on the Richter scale and "strong shocks were felt in Chengtu (the provincial capital)."

The agency gave no details of casualties but said damage was slight in China's second major earthquake in less than a month.

A massive earthquake east of here three weeks ago devastated the industrial city of Tangshan, killing thousands.

Reporting on yesterday's earthquake the news agency said "The damage was very slight because the Chinese seismological department forecast the earthquake and the Szechwan provincial committee had taken precautionary measures beforehand."

It said: "Our great leader Chairman Mao, the party Central Committee and the State Council are very much concerned for the people in the stricken area."

The two towns mentioned in the official reports, Pingwu and Sungpan, have a population of fewer than 20,000 each but accurate estimates were not available for the region, which has not been visited by foreigners for many years.

The area is rugged and mountainous and observers said most of the population would be concentrated in the valley.

Observers said mention of "strong shocks" in Chengtu indicated some damage was probably sustained there.

The report said army and civilian medical teams were rushed to the stricken area immediately after the quake.

The highly fertile area between Chengtu and the epicentre supports the densest population in China with large areas of more than 520 people per square mile (200 per square km).

The important Chengtu-North China railway runs within 40 miles (65 km) of Pingwu.

Szechwan is a traditional danger zone for earthquakes. In 1973, a quake of 7.9 on the Richter scale rocked the west of the province, near the Tibet border, and the official press admitted it caused "loss of life."

The following year, a shock registering 7.0 on the Richter scale shook south Szechwan, near the Yunnan frontier.
